AUGUST E. SCHUEHLE.

The sad duty of laying to rest the remains of a beloved departed one is indeed a hard task. We somehow console ourselves with their presence even though they may be confined to a sick bed for many years, and very little of the wanted companionship can be enjoyed. They are at least still among us, and that is much to be thankful for. But when they are taken from our side and we realize that we are no longer to see them nor to talk to them, it is indeed a last duty which we would prefer not to have imposed upon us. It may help to soften the pangs of the parting when we recall with feelings of gratitude and joy and sorrow, some of the outstanding moments in the life of the departed.

August E. Schuehle was born at Quilhi on July 6, 1870, the eldest son of Henry Schuehle and Gebke, nee Gerdes. His parents were hardy pioneers of Medina County and immigrants as well, for they came from the land of their birth, Germany. The father was born in Baden and the mother in Ostfriesland, both in the same year, 1845. The deceased was the first of 7 children born to the parents in this country. Having brought with them the faith of their fathers, the parents had August baptized by the Lutheran pastor, Rev. Ernel, of Quilhi shortly after birth, and having received thorough instruction in the principles of faith by attending the church school and instruction periods, August was confirmed and confessed his faith.

On Dec. 13, 1902, Mr. Schuehle was married to Mary E. Heyen and a happy union resulted. Altogether nine children were born to the pair of whom 2 were taken in death at an early age. Mr. and Mrs. Schuehle first made their home at Upper Quilhi, soon after moving to the Leinweber Settlement, where they remained. The departed busied himself with farming and ranching and by diligent application and industry Mr. Schuehle became successful in his chosen occupation, acquiring a sizeable estate. He was known to have the reputation of being honest and a good citizen in the county where he spent his entire life.

The deceased was in good health during his life time and was not affected by the recent epidemic of flu and other maladies. The day he died he was in the field going about his duties, and hauled cane to the stacks near the house. It was while engaged in this way that severe gas pains overtook him and he, about 3 o'clock, went to the house for a rest. He soon felt well enough to resume his work, when another attack forced him to retire and before the physician arrived about 4 o'clock he had passed away. Accute indigestion had caused his death.

The departed attained the age of 66 years, 7 months and 10 days. The bereaved widow mourns the sudden departure of her faithful husband. There are also seven children grieved over the loss of their father. They are: two sons, Erwin and Alfred, and five daughters, Irene, Elsie, Hedwig, Hester, and Ethel. Three sisters had preceded the deceased in death, two among the surviving, Mrs. Gus Wiemers and Mrs. L. A. Stiegler, and one brother, Henry Schuehle. One grandson also survives.

"The Lord has given, the Lord has taken; blessed be the name of the Lord."

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday, February 17, 1937, at 3:00 P. M. from the Hodge Funeral Home in Hondo. The officiating clergyman was Rev. W. C. Leibfarth of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Hondo. Interment was made at Oakwood Cemetery, Hondo. The pallbearers were: Fritz Martin, Ernest Oefinger, Chas. Schuehle, Henry Frichs, Oscar Bader and Minke Wiemers.

Mr. Schuehle was reared in the Lutheran faith and was a member and supporter of St. Paul's Church. A host of friends and acquaintances join with the readers of this paper in their sincere sympathy with the bereaved. May the God of all Comfort Who is also the God of the widow and the orphan be with the mourners with healing and saving power.

Those from a distance attending the funeral were Miss Edna Flach, Mr. T. M. Fisher, Mr. Youngs Crook and son, Mr. Fred Welter, Mr. Theo. Cagle, Mrs. W. P. Riedner and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Heyen, Mrs. E. H. Frazier, Mr. Alfred Oefinger, Mr. and Mrs. George Saathoff, Mrs. Annie Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. George Gerdes, Mr. and Mrs. Reily, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Oefinger, all from San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wiemers, Mr. Harry Wernette, and Mrs. Edgar Ney, of Corpus Christi; Mr. John Heyen and Mr. Albert Heyen of Uvalde.

WILLIAM HENRY WINDROW DECEASED.

The final summons came to our friend and loved one, Mr. William Henry Windrow, at 6:20 A. M., February 17, 1937, at his home here in Hondo. As the Heavenly Father took from our number this noble big-hearted, kind gentleman, it became Heaven's gain and earth's loss. He was never too busy to speak and greet you; he supported and promoted civic improvement and welfare. He was a faithful supporter of His Lord's work until the very end of his earthly abode. Mr. and Mrs. Windrow reared a family of children, all of whom are noble and gentle men and women.

William Henry Windrow was born December 11, 1871, at Weimer, Texas. He came to Pearsall, Texas, fifteen years later and on November 20, 1894, was married to Miss Anna Lee Sanders at Pearsall. Mr. and Mrs. Windrow came to Hondo in 1898, and since that time Mr. Windrow operated a very successful drug business. His wife preceded his passing on this world on July 15, 1929.

The deceased is survived by three brothers, two sisters, and eight sons, three daughters, and four grandchildren.

The funeral services were conducted from the Baptist church, of which he was a member, at 4 o'clock P. M., February 18, by the pastor, Rev. James W. Askew, and assisted by Rev. W. S. Highsmith, pastor of the local Methodist church.

Those of the family attending the funeral were as follows: Mrs. D. W. West of Fort Worth, a sister; his three brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Windrow of Brady, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. D. Z. Windrow and Mr. and Mrs. Nuel Windrow of Laredo, Texas. His wife's relatives attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods and family of Cotulla, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Don Sanders and Mr. Geo. Sanders of Pearsall. His sons and daughters and families were: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Windrow of Laredo, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Windrow, Don and Robert David (Babo) Windrow of Hondo; Mrs. Ernest Fusselman and daughter from San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. George Carle of Hondo, and Miss Doris Ann Windrow of State University at Austin; also a nephew, Mr. Mercer Windrow of Pearsall. The sister, Mrs. W. O. Cochran of Nipoma, California, did not get to attend.

Pallbearers were: L. E. Heath, W. G. Muennink, Charles Finger, J. G. Barry, Homer Wilson and Dr. John Henry Meyer.

This paper joins in sympathy for those who mourn.

On April 16, 1888, he was married to Miss Johanna Gerdes at New Foundation. ## REV. J. T. HORGER DEAD.

Rev. J. T. Horger died at an early hour Tuesday morning, February 16, 1937, as the result of a paralytic stroke earlier in the night. The aged gentleman suffered a severe stroke about a year ago, but rallied and had been able to give some attention to his business for the past several months. He was about town Monday and paid this office a call, handing in the manuscript for next week's chapter of the series of religious articles which he has been writing for this paper. The next news we had of him he had passed into that beyond where his abiding faith taught him to believe and hope awaits the reward of eternal happiness for those who believe.

Funeral arrangements were delayed until Thursday, awaiting the arrival of his son, Caughey, from Norman, Oklahoma, and burial took place at 2:30 o'clock in Oakwood Cemetery. Rev. W. L. French, pastor of the First Church of Nazarene of San Antonio, of which church deceased had been a member for some years, conducted the funeral services. A large concourse of sorrowing friends joined the family in paying last respects at the grave and the floral offerings were many and profuse in variety.

We hope to have a more befitting sketch of this good man for our next issue.

Due to much sickness, Dr. Springfield of LaCoste, who was scheduled to speak on the relationship of child health and school work, could not be present. His message, however, was read and is published elsewhere in this issue.

The New Fountain Harmonica Band rendered two interesting numbers. We are grateful to those who took part in our program and for their cooperation.

We are also pleased to announce that the Medina County Council has received State aid this year, due to the fact that it has met all the requirements set forth by the State and National Congress of Parent-Teachers Association.

The next regular meeting of the Medina County Council will be at Hondo High School, April 10, at 2 P. M.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH

The Lord and Master once told His disciples: "Whoever shall confess Me before men, him will I also confess before My Father which is in heaven." They who are actively engaged in church membership are thereby making a confession of faith in the Christ before the world of men. They belong to His disciples; therefore are favorably regarded by their Maker and their Judge. There is no other way to the Father but through the Son. There is no way into His Kingdom but through faith. And this faith expresses itself in living adherence and service in this Kingdom, which is represented on earth in the Church.

"But whosoever shall deny Me before men, him will I also deny before My Father which is in heaven."

A special service will be conducted next Sunday night beginning at 7:45 P. M. The Rev. G. P. Krebs of Columbus, Ohio, will be the speaker. A class of adults will be received into church membership by baptism and confirmation. You are welcome.

TIME FOR ACTION.

No issue that the next Congress will consider will be more important than the tax issue. And none will affect so overwhelming a proportion of the people.

We have achieved a considerable measure of industrial recovery. The need for much of the relief spending of the last few years has been eliminated. The time is here when we must, as a nation, balance the books, and return to normal governmental fiscal policies.

It is unquestionably true that the burden of taxation, plus the fear of still heavier taxation in the future, is keeping industry from making even faster progress toward complete recovery. An investor who fears that the money he places in an industrial enterprise—where it would create wealth and jobs and stimulate the entire business structure—may be virtually eaten up by taxation, is naturally super-cautious. The result is "tight money" so far as many industries are concerned.

The first step toward solving our fiscal problem is to balance the budget. The second step is to begin a program to systematically reduce our public debt. The third step is to lower the tax load as soon as possible.

All three of these steps are necessary—each is related to the other. They constitute the only road toward sound governmental finance and normal prosperity.

17 DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEES ARE NAMED IN AREA.

D'Hanis and Castroville name Local Chairmen.

Seguin, Feb. 18.—(Sp.) Seventeen South Texas Chamber of Commerce organizations have named members of South Texas Development committees in response to a suggestion made recently by Max Starcke of Seguin, president of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The committees are planned as contact groups between the individual organizations and the regional chamber. Cooperative work for the benefit of the South Texas area and the individual towns and cities will be carried out through the organization of the committees. A number of other chambers of commerce have notified Starcke they plan to appoint such groups in the near future.

Organizations which have appointed committees, and the chairmen, are as follows:

Gonzales, S. M. Ainsworth; Corpus Christi, Bruce Collins; Alice, O. H. Meyer; Beeville, Earl B. Hunt; Sinton, Edgar F. Bonorder; Robstown, James H. Ewing; D'Hanis, F. J. Carle; Luling, H. M. Ainsworth; Cuero, Berthold Schiketz; Bay City, Vancro Porter; Pearsall, W. J. Tyner; Yoakum, Henry S. Paulus; San Marcos, Dr. C. E. Evans; Stockdale, R. H. Kidwell; Eagle Lake, David Winterman; Seguin, J. P. Gibbs, and Castroville, August Schott.

LOCAL AUTHOR WINS PLACE IN IMPORTANT BOOK

Miss Mary Octavia Davis, of San Antonio, known here, is one of the writers whose work is included in AMERICAN VOICES-1936, a poetry anthology which has just been published. The volume contains mainly the work of worthwhile but obscure authors who should receive greater recognition for their literary efforts, and the publishers through this collection are introducing their writings to a large and important audience of readers throughout the country. For several of those included in the volume it may mean the beginning of an outstanding literary career and world-wide fame. Last year, in preparing the book, a nationwide search for talented writers was conducted. Manuscripts were submitted by more than 6000 authors, but the work of only 400 of these was selected for inclusion in the volume. The publishers, pleasantly surprised by the amount of excellent poetry submitted by unknown writers and by the success of previous efforts, are now compiling a similar volume to be issued later this year. Again they are engaging in a widespread search for writers of talent who might otherwise remain forever obscure. Those who are interested should write to the publishers, AVON HOUSE, 151 Fifth Avenue, New York City, for a copy of the rules of the competition.

Let us be your job printers.

HOME ECONOMICS SUPERVISOR.

Recognition of the important part the home supervisor is playing in the advancement of home economics in rural life has just come from the Texas State Home Economics Association through an invitation to Myrtle K. Montgomery, county home supervisor for the Resettlement Administration, to join the association. Invitation to join the association indicates recognition of a professional standard of work in a program which contributes definitely to a better understanding of home problems and the part home economics can play in creating a more ideal family life.

Miss Montgomery confines her activities to work with home-makers in families who have borrowed money from the Resettlement Administration under the supervised loan plan. She works with the women in planning their annual home budget, in executing this budget, and in carrying their share of the burden of repayment. Their "share" is the raising and conserving of every possible item of food, the making of clothing and bedding, and the planning of inexpensive recreation so that cash income from crops may be applied against family indebtedness.

The success of this plan has been so pronounced that many wives are conserving quantities of food valued at more than the total income the husbands make from cash crops. The greatest value of these products is not in the raw product as it comes from the garden, chicken pen, hog and cow lots, but in the finished products—butter, cured meat, canned poultry, canned and dried vegetables and mattresses.

The home supervisor helps these women grow a bushel of tomatoes on a few feet of ground and then convert the bushel of tomatoes into an average of $2.30 worth of canned tomatoes and tomato juice; or fifty pounds of raw cotton and nine yards of ticking into a $15 or $20 mattress; or tame and wild fruits into the family's supply of fruit juices and jellies.

While she is teaching the home-maker and the girls to do these things she is also teaching them the health-giving properties of various foods, of a balanced diet, and of plenty of fruit and tomato juices. In some counties where winter colas and malaria fever abound among these families, proper diet has eliminated much of the demand for tonics and patent medicines.

Lelia L. Elzner, district home supervisor for this county, has also been invited to join the Texas State Home Economics Association.

All knowledge is lost which ends in the knowing, for every truth we know is a candle given us to work by. Gain all the knowledge you can and then use it for the highest purpose.—John Ruskin.

INCREASED SALE USED CARS.

Greatly increased sales activity in the used car market was predicted today for 1937 by B. W. Slagle, manager of the Ford Motor Company Houston Branch.

A substantial increase in the number of prospects able to afford the purchase of an inexpensive car, due to improved economic conditions, is the primary factor in the expansion of the used car market now in progress, Mr. Slagle said.

"A contributing factor is the large number of owners, who have driven cars which are not in condition for economical operation. Owners have realized that it would be better to trade-in their car for a better used car, which can be operated economically and is in proper condition for daily driving. As more and more owners discover that their present cars are costing them too much to drive, or are operating inefficiently, the used car sales volume will continue to expand.

"Fortunately automobile dealers are well stocked with a wide variety of worthwhile used cars and are able to meet the rapidly growing demand," he explained. "So far as Ford dealers are concerned, the enthusiastic acceptance accorded the 1937 Ford V-8 has brought to the Ford dealer most every make of late model cars which are in excellent condition."

"The Ford 'R & G' procedure of used car selling has resulted in a marked increase in Ford dealer used car volume, Mr. Slagle declared.

"Each used car offered for sale by a Ford dealer under this emblem is renewed and guaranteed, in accordance with fixed standards laid down by the Ford Motor Company. Such cars, when sold, are backed up by a mechanical and written money-back guarantee.

"Used cars sold under this procedure in most cases operate more economically than the average used car in owners' hands at present."

VALUE VS. COST IN BED-SPREADS.

To make the bedspreads cheaper Mary Belle Carle and Mary Ann Finger of the girls 4-H Club in D'Hanis, have decided to use colored chambray which costs 55c per yard—10/4 width and 60c per yard 11/4 width, in preference to using unbleached sheeting, which is 10c cheaper per yard. The chambray causes the spread to cost more for material, but saving is realized by using natural colored thread which can be purchased for as low as 30c per pound, in comparison with colored thread which cost $1.60 per pound.

The chambray may be purchased from Alto Bedspread Co., Calhoun, Ga., while the natural thread is purchased from Textile Mills, A. and M. College, Bryan, Texas.

The colored chambray lends color as a background for the natural yarn, while the natural yarn, in addition to being cheaper, gives a much prettier tuft.

FINDING THE LEAK IN THE EXPENSE ACCOUNT.

"Next month I feel sure that I shall get 'out of the red,'" said Mrs. Robert Breiten, a cooperator in the Dunlay Home Demonstration Club as she was telling about her budget plan.

By using her produce, and the rent of $12.50 from a small house in a neighboring town, Mrs. Breiten is being able to buy needed groceries and she says that they do not grow hungry, but have ice cream almost every day, pays tuition for her son, who is attending Hondo High School, pays his incidentals and buys linens for her house.

During the past month she lacked $2.58 covering this, but by selling the culls in her poultry flock, she feels she will be "out of the red" during the month of February.

The advantages of a budget is to help in stopping extra expenses and utilizing all extra produce that might have been wasted. Mrs. Breiten feels that she is "seeing things" she had never seen before, in the managing of her household to an advantage, economically, since she is attempting living within the limit of her budget.

Since she has been buying chicken feed out of her own allowance, she feels she is feeding too many mouths. This is leading to a culling of her chickens. In culling her chickens she will be able to sell her eggs as eggs from pure-bred hens.

IRENE HAWKINS,
Co. Home Dem. Agent.

THE VALUE OF A CANNING BUDGET.

"I canned 400 containers of vegetables and fruits last year, but that was not enough; because I have worlds of company, and it is always nice to be able to go to the pantry for another can of beans and corn, when company comes," said Mrs. Homeyer at the Black Creek Club, which was studying and filling the canning budget.

The canning budget which was made out proves that Mrs. Homeyer was right. In planning the canning budget, we allow:

|                                    |                |
|------------------------------------|----------------|
| Leafy, green and yellow vegetables | 150 containers |
| Other vegetables                   | 180 containers |
| Tomatoes                           | 135 containers |
| Fruits                             | 150 containers |
| Meats                              | 70 containers  |
| Preserves and marmalade            | 52 containers  |
| Miscellaneous                      | 52 containers  |
|                                    | 789 containers |

A pantry containing 789 containers will take care of all families and company.

QUIHI NOTES.

And he said, I am Abraham's servant. And the Lord hath blessed my master greatly; and he is become great; and he hath given him flocks and herds, and silver ... gold ... camels, etc. Gen. 24:34-35.

Eliezer speaking. He is pressing his plea, humbly, plainly and wisely, to Bethuel and his household. No arrogance or swelled head, though entrusted with a high mission. Not a word about his own qualifications, distinction and honor. Simply a servant, he is. No super-salesmanship talk about his diplomatic maneuver, his shrewd arrangement, to gain his goal, and yet, in all simplicity, captivatingly wise in presenting the proper background for his suit. His credentials are in the record, the fame and the achievements of his master, Abraham. It's an enviable record and, no doubt, the result of thrift, wise management and careful use and exploitation of opportunities blooming by the wayside. He might have grown great and valuable on these virtues of his boss. Not a syllable on that. Indispensable as these virtues are, there are deeper and far more effective causes at the bottom of such success. The servant here endorses and joins his master, The Lord has blessed; He hath given. That's not the customary view. Self-confidence, self-sufficiency and self-glorification are the voices most often heard. "How we apples swim!" How our trumpets blow and our home-made suns do shine! The Lord is often left out of the bargain. The very thought is often disturbing, that He might look and listen in, when man with a great and unscrupulous sweep accumulates his flocks and herds, his silver and gold, etc. Wealth and God are seldom boon companions. Wealth often outruns the other—and breaks its neck. It's often the top-heavy camel that's wedged in at the straight and narrow gate. But it must not be thus. Abraham was one of the richest and yet most pious and humble of men, giving credit and honor to whom it was due. No finer testimony could a servant give his master. What would ours testify?

Diseases of various kinds and other causes had made big dents in the line of our contributors for the last Luther League program, but thanks to our ever-ready volunteers we were little the worse for it. The numbers were enjoyed by a fine attendance. The next program must be in the making soon, so here are the numbers: Recitations, Miss Pauline Graff, Mrs. Elmer Saathoff; select readings, Lester Saathoff, Clarence Bohlen; vocal selections, Walter Grell, Miss Lillian Hartman; instrumental number, Miss Eileen Hartman.

For a once we were able to go through with our annual meeting at St. John's in New Fountain, although the number attending might have been a good deal better. Maybe there were good reasons for the absence. Mr. Robt. Nietenhoefer had declined re-election as vestryman. His past services were much appreciated. Mr. Arnold Lindeburg was elected in his stead. The induction of the officers will take place on the fourth Sunday in February.

The first of the Lenten services was attended by a small number of worshippers. There is sickness in many a family. For some the time was set too early. Services henceforth will begin at 8 o'clock every Wednesday evening. Will you not accompany your Lord on His lonely pilgrimage to suffering and death—for you?

Announcements for February the 21st: German service at 10:30; Sunday school in all departments at 9:30; English service at 7 P. M. Reserve time for the Lord, as He does for you. Come.

RELATIONSHIP OF CHILD HEALTH AND SCHOOL WORK.

By Dr. A. J. Springfield, LaCoste, Texas.

The school is, or should be, a practical institution. It is expected that it will promote good citizenship and community welfare. America has thought so much of education that it has practically made public school education universal, compulsory and free. Our communities invariably spend more money for schools than for any other project in the budget.

The modern teacher realizes that the school is a creation of society and is designed to serve a social group, and that there must be a mutual interest between the school and the community it serves.

Teachers and health educators are agreed that in the instruction and training of children they should acquire reliable knowledge about health and should form good habits and gain wholesome attitudes.

Every teacher is looking for results. As an outcome of her teaching she expects her pupils to learn to think, feel and act in such ways which are conducive to the highest aim of education.

The school has the child in its direct control for approximately six hours a day, five days a week, or about 30 hours out of every 168 weekly for not over forty weeks.

During this time the school can have a great influence for good or ill on the life of the child, but it cannot be held responsible alone for that child's health, nor should it attempt to assume such responsibility.

The best teachers of today try to find out the needs of their pupils before they really begin their teaching. If she is a progressive teacher she begins to take into account the health needs of the children as soon as she enters her classroom in September and she makes a general survey of the equipment of the school and the resources available in the community.

What agencies will our teachers find at work, to cooperate with them in their efforts to conserve and improve the health of the children in the schools of this County?

Is it enough to have a county health officer who can discover contagious diseases and close the schools?

Or wouldn't it be better to have a County Health nurse who would cooperate with our teachers in putting forth a practical health program which would be carried on throughout the school year?

This school and county nurse would assure: 1st. Health protection through health examinations and corrections of defects, first aid, and communicable disease prevention; 2nd. Hygienic environment within the school plant, including proper lighting, ventilation, properly adjusted seats and general sanitation; 3rd. Health teaching beginning in the early grades with opportunities for practice of desirable health habits.

Of course, we must bear in mind that present day economic conditions have considerably altered the situation in carrying out a school health program. Harry Hopkins, General Emergency Relief Administrator, has stated that approximately one out of every six children is on public relief. But this is where our school nurse serves best—as a go between.

She knows the needs of the children and knows what community health agencies can be called in for services needed. She is in a position to enlist the parents, for after all, no matter how sluggish a community may appear to be it is usually willing to do everything in its power to promote the welfare of its children in any way possible. She is able, thru the cooperation of the teachers, to promote a health program in the schools which will not be abstract and leave the pupils unresponsive, but a wide awake workable program which associates health habits with everyday living.

Oddly enough there has been little thought until the last few years as to what health really meant. Even today there are many differences of opinion as to what constitutes a healthy child. However, all medical experts and educators agree that health education can be promoted only by emphasizing all aspects of health, physical, mental, social and moral.

A healthy person has enough energy so that a reasonable amount of work and play is stimulating rather than fatiguing. A healthy personality is one which enables the individual to meet the problems of his life with success and satisfaction. Such a child is able to concentrate his attention on the matter before him. How necessary this is for good school work. Such a child is happy, cheerful, self-reliant and courageous.

Isn't it all important then that we as parents put forth every effort for a child health program in our schools, without which both teachers and pupils are unable to do their best work?

"Graham drew back. 'You believe anything you're told, don't you?' he sneered. 'I suppose you think this is a very romantic marriage, this match between the girl and a young rolling-in-gold millionaire, this James Weldon Shipley Brynildson, Third, who pretends to fall in love with your precious granddaughter and marries her at sight. Well, let me tell you, it isn't half as romantic as it looks. Do you know what he is? He's nothing but a cheap adventurer, that's all, going around the world buying thrills with his money. This is a new one, this is. He hasn't done this before. But wait . . . when he's tired of his new toy, then you'll see what'll happen. He'll drop her like a wrung mop-rag.'"

"That's enough," Bryn said sharply, and stepped forward. He turned to Grandmother. "Is there anything further you wish to say to him?" he asked her quietly.

"Nothing, my boy," Grandmother answered steadily, still standing proudly. "Then," Bryn said directly to Graham, "on your way. Go on," he said between his teeth, "if you know what's good for you."

Graham backed off precipitately. "Just a minute," Tubby said softly. "Where did you get all your information about our hero?"

"It's none of your damn business," Graham said.

"Let him go," Bryn said sharply to Tubby. "It's obvious, isn't it?"

Pilar, back in the shadows, stirred. With a set frozen face she rose, walked past Grandmother and Deborah and Bryn, standing together at the top of the steps, and past Graham staring at her. She went across the grass and got into her car. She started the motor. The car turned on two wheels, scraped Graham's fender, and darted off, without a backward glance from Pilar.

The morning, Bryn discovered, had somehow whirled itself away. Pilar was gone; Graham was gone. Tubby and Madeline had gone wandering off into the woods, with an apple apiece, and an injunction from Sally not to return until Tubby could look at Madeline without that dazed expression. Sally herself had taken a cushion out to the lawn after lunch, with that avowed intention of getting another layer of sun-tan, but she had promptly gone to sleep there in the heat, and Simon had carried out an umbrella and erected it over her to keep her from burning. Grandmother was asleep, too, on the couch before the open window in the sitting room. Bryn left the room softly, and shut the door behind him; and then he went on with his search for Deborah.

He went down the path toward the brook with long, quick steps, and came at last to the solid ring of trees that formed the back of Deborah's most hidden sanctuary.

Bryn rapped lightly on the tree trunk under his hand. She turned, quickly, and looked up, her eyes dark and still full of dreams, her mouth red and soft. Bryn stood between the two trees, and just outside them. "May I come in, Deborah?" he asked.

She dropped her lashes. "If you . . . wish," she said in a low voice.

He squeezed through the opening and came down the slope toward her. She was seated in the hollow like a throne, with a level bank to sit on and a sloping back covered with thick green grass. She did not speak. Bryn went down the slope and came to a halt below her.

Deborah would not look up. Bryn moved nearer and dropped down a yard away, his eyes upon her. "Haven't you forgiven me," Bryn asked at last, gently, "for not telling you that Grandmother knew? I told her on that ride."

"You did try to tell me."

"Tell me what's troubling you, Deborah. All the fears and worries are gone, dear."

She caught her lower lip between two white teeth. She shook her head. Bryn moved closer to her. He tried to take her hands, but she pulled them away.

She swallowed. Then, "I wish you'd go away," she said under her breath.

"Go away?"

"The others are going today. After dinner. You could go with them."

"Go away, Deborah? Go away from you, you mean? Leave you here? Go back to San Francisco?"

She nodded, her eyes on the leaf.

Bryn put his face down into his hands. After a long time he said, slowly, "I don't understand, Deborah. This morning you . . . why, you gave me this flower!" he said, touching it. "I thought you were beginning to care a little about me."

She did not reply.

He looked down at Deborah's bent head. "That's final, then?" he asked quietly. She did not answer.

"Sorry," he said after a moment. "I suppose I was a fool to think that you could possibly care about me. You're so exquisite, and so fine, and you're not made out of ordinary stuff like the rest of us. I might have known from the beginning that it wasn't any use. I think I did know, Deborah, so you needn't reproach yourself."

She was gazing up at him, still with that anguished look in her eyes. Bryn managed a smile. He held his hand out. "Shake hands?" he inquired. "If you don't mind, Deborah, I think I'll go now instead of waiting until tonight."

She got to her feet slowly. Her face was as white as chalk. She put her hand in his. "Good-by," she whispered, and he stood for a moment looking into her eyes, then turned away.

"No," Deborah said clearly. "No. It isn't any use. I can't let you go." She was beside him, her hands on his arms, her face upheld to his. "I can't let you go," she said. "I don't care what you think about me. I don't care if I am a new kind of toy to you. I don't care if this is only a part of an adventure to you, an adventure that will be over . . . tomorrow, or in just a little while. I don't care about anything, or what happens to me, only I can't let you go away from me. I haven't got any pride or any strength left." Bryn stood, motionless, staring down at her in bewilderment. "Don't you understand?" she cried again. "I . . . I love you."

"Love me?" he repeated incredulously.

"You mean," Bryn repeated, with dawning understanding, "you mean, you love me?"

She lifted her wet lashes and looked at him. With a little groan he moved his arms at last, and closed them tight around her. He bent his head, and put his lips to her eyelids.

"Deborah."

She turned her head, slowly, and looked up at him. A flood of color swept over her face. He smiled tenderly down at her. "You funny little chicken," he said. "Do you think it would be much of an adventure just to marry anybody, Deborah? Do you think I would have offered to marry just any girl at all who happened to be in your predicament? Not in this world, you foolish baby. The minute I saw you standing there in the office, Deborah, something said to me . . . there's your girl, Bryn, out of all the world. I was completely lost from that very first look, sweetheart, and I wasn't going to let you go no matter what happened."

"I was afraid to do anything at all for fear I'd lose you, and it's been just about as bad ever since we were married. You don't know how often I've gone out and cut firewood and hammered nails just to keep myself away from you."

Deborah turned and buried her face again in his shoulder.

He put a hand beneath her cheek, and turned her head again. His eyes looked down into hers, and gray clung to violet again, but there was a new expression in both. Then, slowly, he bent his head, and put his lips down to hers, so soft and young and innocent.

"Deborah," he said gently, "I love you. You're the only girl in the world, as far as I'm concerned, Deborah . . . will you be my wife? What I'm asking you now is whether or not you think that some time you might love me enough really to be my wife. I couldn't hope for so much yet, but later, when you get to know me better, and trust me more, do you think you could?"

She began to understand. "When you're a wife you think about . . . that is, about having children, don't you?"

"If you want children."

"Well," Deborah said positively, "I do. There isn't any difficult about that. I've wanted them for years and years. I built this playhouse for them, long ago, for a little boy and a little girl."

She looked at him and smiled. "So that's all right," she said.

"Yes," he said after a moment, "that seems to be all right. I think we could practically count on something like that eventually."

He reached into his watch pocket and drew out a ring box. Then drew out the ring. He lifted Deborah's hand, and slowly took off her wedding ring. He slipped the new ring on the finger where the wedding ring had been, lifted the hand and put it to his lips. "That's your engagement ring, dear," he said.

Deborah looked down at it. It was a great gleaming pearl, flushed the palest rose, and set exquisitely in thin gold filigree. "It's . . . lovely," she breathed.

"It was my mother's."

Deborah looked up at him.

"When you want your wedding ring."

Bryn went on carefully, lifting a curl on her temple, "when you're sure of me, and positive that you're making no mistake, and when you get to know that you feel about me the way I feel about you—as nearly as you can, of course . . . and can't live without me, I'll be very glad to put it back on your finger. As far as I'm concerned, Deborah, I never did approve of long engagements."

It was time at last to say good-by to the guests. Sally and Madeline got into knitted dresses and Simon and Tubby into knickerbockers, and their bags were put into the car, and Grandmother had insisted on having Gary pack a basket of fruit for them and at last they were gone.

Grandmother went to bed early, tired from a hard day. Deborah and Bryn sat near the door, and looked across at the moon. "I can't believe that you're real, and that you love me, and that we're here together, alone," he said. "Tell me again, Deborah."

She told him again, and when Deborah looked at him she knew that she loved him for always, and when he spoke his voice rang in her heart.

After a long time he rose. "You'd better get to bed, sweetheart," he said, and his voice held the deep low note in it she was beginning to understand. "It's been a long day for you, too."

"Are you coming up too?"

"I'll take you up. I'll carry you up," he decided, and slipped his arms beneath her. They reached the top at last, and were in her sitting room.

"Why did you wear your wedding dress tonight?" he asked.

"Oh," Deborah murmured, "just because. Do you . . . like it?"

"I'll never forget the first time I saw you in it, Deborah."

She looked up at him. "This is the last time I'm going to wear it," she said. "It's so delicate, and old. I'm going to save it for . . . that is, I'm going to save it."

"Aren't you going to wear it just once more, Deborah? When . . . just one more time, sweetheart?"

"No," she said under her breath. "This is the last."

He bent and kissed her white shoulder where the lace sleeves lay against it. "There, then," he said. "That's what I wanted to do the other time I saw it." Then he kissed her lips again, quickly. "Good-night," he said. "I've got to go."

"Why?"

"Oh, Deborah!"

"I don't know why," she said. "Simon stays with Sally. Always. Doesn't he?"

"Yes, but . . ."

She stood on tiptoe and put her arms about his neck.

"Oh, Bryn, you are a big silly," she said contentedly. She kissed the cleft in his chin, and put her palm against his cheek. "I thought you didn't approve of long engagements?"

By Rev. J. T. Horgner.

ARTICLE No. 18.
We next take up 1 Corinthians, by St. Paul. Let the reader understand that we are only writing up the points which appear, to our mind, to bear directly or indirectly on the subject of salvation; which, of a FIRST and SECOND work of grace. I realize that most of our older Protestant churches, and the Catholic church, do not teach this theory, and reject it as heresy, and hold that both faith and evil grow out of it. But you will notice that they are all negative witnesses in the case. They profess that they, experimentally, know nothing about the SECOND work of grace, but have opinions about it and have come to certain conclusions concerning the doctrine. Well, a witness of that kind will be held in our courts at once "to stand or fall," and the court will seek a witness who has a PERSONAL knowledge of the case: Wherefore, I am aware of these articles, having a personal experience of over forty years with the second work of grace, and have studied God's Word for the truth for over sixty years. And I have carefully studied the history of the doctrine and those who professed the experience and their lives from the days of the Wesleys; for it was an eminent doctrine among the Methodists for the first one hundred years of their existence in the world. And I have honestly come to the conclusion that the leaving off the doctrine of the neglecting of the obtaining of the baptism of the Holy Ghost, which is a SECOND WORK of grace, which is constitutionally is, is the main cause of all the lethargy, coldness, and indifference; also the absence of the Holy Ghost, as a result of the rejection of this truth, is responsible for nine-tenths of the worldliness and carnality in ALL our churches.

The people are only partly Christianized, and, therefore, they misrepresent, rather than properly represent Christ. I would not have written the above, had it not been necessary so that you may know my motive. Is it Secretarianism? No! Never in this world I have long since, by God's grace, risen above such carnal egotism. But I must turn to 1st. Cor. 2:9, where St. Paul tells us that "Eye has not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God has prepared for them that love Him." But in the next verse, he tells us that "God hath revealed them to us by his spirit." And in 2:14, he tells us that the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. This is our biggest trouble today in trying to teach the Word of God; the people are both INCAPACITATED and DISINTERESTED. They are hastening to an eternity of which they know nothing, and also care nothing about. 2:15, "But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged"—is understood—"of no man." And in 14:3, writing to these people who were merely born of the Spirit and were letting both the head and heels of the carnal mind—the old man—stick out in such an ugly manner, Paul said, "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ." Note, dear reader, they were both carnal and babes in Christ at the SAME TIME. And in Rom. 8:6, he tells us "To be carnally minded is DEATH"; that is, if we are worldly led thereby. Then 1 Cor. 14:1, "I have fed you with milk, and not with meat; for hitherto, ye were not able to bear it, neither now are ye able." "For ye are yet carnal: wherefore there is among you envyings, and strife, and divisions, as ye are carnal, and walk as men." Yes, here is the trouble with all our churches, for they don't believe in seeking and obtaining the gift of the Holy Ghost. God's remedy for such troubles. So, when the church indulges in various forms of worldliness, the pastor usually lets it rock on, or reproves them sharply for worldliness, but does not tell them of God's remedy for the SIN that besets them. But after Paul had taught them the right ideas and conduct, he then proceeded in 1 Cor. 5:7, exhorting to "Purge out the old LEAVEN, that ye may be a NEW lump, as ye are intended to be 'unleavened'." Now "leaven," in Scripture, always symbolizes CORRUPTION and sin; and in this case, stands for the carnal mind or the "old man." "For even Christ our Passover, is sacrificed for us; therefore let us KEEP the feast, not with old leaven"—carnal mindedness—"neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." St. Paul, at this point realizing their carnal mindedness and sinful disposition, naturally following their regeneration, and knowing that the Passover feast was ordained of God to typify regeneration; and while the lamb typified Christ, the unleavened bread, as Paul indicates, typifying purity, sincerity and truth. And he is exhorting them to return to repentance and regenerate purity, as symbolized by the bread, which was to be kept up in the original feast for seven days, doubtless symbolizing a life time period—seventy years. Therefore, he exhorts, let us KEEP the feast; that is, live a pure, sincere and upright life.

Just here I will say that all teachers of "Second Blessing" Holiness, worthy of the name, tell us that it is impossible to lead the back-slidden, by one step, into the gift of the Holy Ghost; but they must be restored to grace is again thorough and complete, and then only can they be baptized in the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. So we note that St. Paul is now ready to introduce that subject to them, 1 Cor. 6:19: "What! Know ye not that your body is the TEMPLE of the Holy Ghost?" Now St. Paul, holding that the body of the believer is the Temple of the Holy Ghost, we will say both the Tabernacle built by Moses and the Temple built by Solomon, were both ordered by Jehovah to be built after the same God-given pattern, and both outlined man's entire being; the outer court corresponded to man's body; the holy place represented man's mind; and the most holy place symbolized man's spirit or soul. The above is the outline of both the Tabernacle and the Temple.

Now, let the reader understand that salvation commences in the outer court, of man's thoughts, meditations, and reflections. And as he accepts and obeys God's truth, his salvation moves from the outer court into the holy place, which symbolizes regeneration—born of the Spirit. And then the process passes through the veil, which marked the distinction between regeneration and sanctification, and the experience enters into the Holy of Holies, by the baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire. And being sanctified, the Holy Ghost abides, and the body, mind and soul is "filled with all the fullness of God"; that is, the redeeming Spirit of God the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Now viewing the Tabernacle as a whole it stood for man's experience in regeneration as such when it was complete and dedicated God sent His Spirit upon it, signifying His acceptance. And the Temple as a whole, typified man's experience in sanctification, and as such, when finished and dedicated, a cloud covered it and God's glory filled the Temple and God continued to dwell in the Holy of Holies, which symbolized the human heart. Now we hope that it more clearly appears, just what St. Paul means when he said, "Know ye not that your body is the Temple of God?" He meant that the Holy Ghost should come in, sanctify and abide.

CONDUCTING HIGHWAY PLANNING SURVEY.

The car owners of Medina County can aid tremendously in furnishing official information to the State Highway Planning Survey for use in working out a logical plan on which future road and street construction will be based. Mr. L. E. Heath, the Assessor and Collector of Taxes, has been given a number of post cards which ask for fundamental information that is needed in road planning, thus affording the motorist opportunity to participate in outlining his future road program. These cards, to be distributed to car owners as they pay their 1937 registration fees, require no postage and are self-addressed. The number of cards which have been furnished Mr. Heath was judged according to the number of motor vehicles which were registered in the County during 1936. The number of cards allotted to Medina County is as follows: 2450 for passenger automobiles, 950 for trucks, and 100 for trailers and motorcycles, and 50 for owners of five or more vehicles.

The business of constructing and maintaining highways, streets, and roads has become a tremendous task within recent years, and it now affects the well-being of every citizen. Obviously, every effort should be made to plan our public road system so that it will serve all car owners in an equitable manner and so that the tax burden for roads will be distributed justly. The information sought on these cards is vital to the establishment of an equitable, well-rounded program. In order to work out such a program, the Texas Highway Department and the United States Bureau of Public Roads are conducting a State-wide Highway Planning Survey, and it is the advantage of each County to participate to the greatest extent possible.

General Motors Strike Ended, Both Sides Yielding—
Opposition to President's Supreme Court Plan
Increases—Great Plains Drouth Program.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

BOTH sides making concessions, the General Motors strike came to an end in what Governor Murphy of Michigan called "an enduring peace." Operations of the great corporation had been paralyzed for 43 days, and the losses to it in business and to workers in wages have been immense. Partly through the skillful efforts of James F. Dewey, veteran federal labor conciliator, John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., and other union leaders, and the officials of General Motors were persuaded to modify the defendant stands they had maintained through eight days of negotiations in Detroit, and the governor was enabled to announce the settlement. Under the terms of the agreement:

- 1—The corporation recognized the union as the collective bargaining agency for those employees belonging to the union.
- 2—The corporation and the union agreed to commence collective bargaining negotiations on February 16.
- 3—The union agreed to end the strike and evacuate all plants occupied by strikers.
- 4—The corporation promised to resume operations in all strike-bound or idle plants "as rapidly as possible."
- 5—All employees are to return to work without discrimination against strikers.
- 6—The union agreed that pending negotiations there will be no other strikes or interference with production.
- 7—During existence of the collective bargaining agreement contemplated, all opportunities to negotiate shall be exhausted before any other strike or production interference is attempted by the union.
- 8—After evacuation of plants the corporation agreed to dismiss the injunction proceedings started by the corporation against the union or any members in Flint, Mich.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, whose own efforts to end the strike were futile, was highly gratified by the settlement. She gave out a statement praising the leaders on both sides for their give and take spirit and complimenting Governor Murphy on his success. Probably considerable credit should be given President Roosevelt, who kept constantly in close touch with the situation and talked with the conferees by telephone from the White House.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S proposals for legislation that would permit him to pack the Supreme court have met with such widespread and determined opposition, even from many members of his own party, that it was suggested to him that he accept certain modifications. These include appointment of Supreme court justices only when those over seventy-five do not retire, and limitation of the number a President could thus appoint during his term to two. His plan as submitted to congress would enable him to name six new members of the court if the present six justices who are over seventy do not retire voluntarily.

Mr. Roosevelt announced to the correspondents that he was quite aware of the controversy he was confronting but would not back down on his demand for the legislation as outlined in his message.

It is probable that the President can get his measure through the house without great trouble, but a hot fight against it is certain in the senate. So far the Republicans in congress haven't had much to say on the matter, for the Democratic opponents of the scheme are vociferous enough to suit the G. O. P. It is said there is a good chance that the senate judiciary committee, headed by Ashurst of Arizona, will report unfavorably on the measure in so far as the proposal for increasing the membership of the Supreme court is concerned. The other parts of the President's plan, designed to expedite the work of federal courts, do not meet with much opposition.

Probably the scheme will be separated into several bills; and indeed that already has been started, for Representative Summers of Texas, chairman of the house judiciary committee, introduced a bill providing for voluntary retirement for Supreme court justices with full pay at the age of seventy. This was passed quickly by a vote of 315 to 75.

CONCLUSIONS of the great plains drouth committee were laid before congress by President Roosevelt, the report being accompanied by a special message in which the President urged the development of a "new economy" in the vast area between the Alleghenies and the Rockies to save the region from the effects of future drouths. The

Views on President's Plan to Enlarge Supreme Court

Senator Byrnes—I'm for it.
Senator Nye—I think the President has hit upon a most ingenious method of speeding up the work of our tribunals.
Senator Vandenberg—I am opposed to tampering with the Supreme court.
Senator McAdoo—The President's message receives my unreserved commendation.
Senator Capper—I am certainly opposed to increasing the number of Supreme court judges for the purpose of allowing the executive during any one administration to control the decisions of the Supreme court.
Senator Hale—Should his recommendations be followed, I can see no hope of an independent Supreme court.
Senator Gerry—I'm definitely opposed to the President's proposal in regard to the Supreme court.
Senator Thomas—I think it is a timely and happy solution of a perplexing problem.
Representative Snell—This is pretty near the beginning of the end of everything.
Representative Fish—The message is political hypocrisy.
Speaker Bankhead—The plan for adding additional judges is a sound policy.
Senator King—I am unalterably opposed to it.

whole matter, said Mr. Roosevelt, dovetails into the proposed six year public works program.

The great plains committee suggested for the federal government:

1. A ten year program of additional investigations and surveys.
2. Continued acquisition of land in range areas with rehabilitation as the objective.
3. Measures to increase size of farms too small for efficient operation.
4. Development of water resources.
5. Resettlement within and without the region.
6. Compensation to local governments where federal land acquisition results in shrinkage of the local tax basis.
7. Control and eradication of insect pests.
8. Exploration of possibilities for developing other resources, such as vast lignite deposits to provide alternative occupation for some of the people in the area.

Similar action was suggested for states with the addition of suggestions for legislation to permit formation of county soil conservation districts, encouragement of co-operative grazing associations, revision of the taxing system to take account of land income and assistance to farmers in meeting water problems.

For local co-operation the committee suggested crop rotation, creation of feed and seed reserves against dry years, conservation of moisture, supplemental irrigation, fuller utilization of springs and wells, planting of trees and shrubs as windbreaks and flexible cropping plans to permit adaptation of each season's crop to the amount of moisture in the land.

BARCELONA, capital of the autonomous Spanish state of Catalonia, was bombed by a Fascist warship, and the Catalan council of state immediately decreed a new mobilization to meet the threat of an insurgent attack. It also ordered the strengthening of fortifications and set up a superior defense council.

Following the capture of the important Mediterranean coast city of Malaga by General Franco's Fascist troops, a general clean up of loyalists there was started. Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, rebel commander in southern Spain, announced over the radio that more than 150 leaders and military officers of the government had been arrested and executed after trial. He said an attack would soon be made on Valencia, the loyalist temporary capital on the east coast.

France was vexed by the reported assistance given the Fascists by Italians in the taking of Malaga, and renewed her threats to intervene in behalf of the government unless Italy and Germany ceased their active support of Franco. The long drawn out siege of Madrid continued, but there was one important development when the insurgents, attacking with infantry and tanks from the south, threatened to cut the highway to Valencia, the capital's only remaining line of communication with the outside.

Much of the problem that is swirling around the courts of the land results from the position which congress has chosen to take. There are a goodly number of representatives and senators who, swayed by the vocal minority mentioned earlier, have voiced bitter criticisms of the judiciary and have even proposed that its freedom be curbed. They

Washington.—More perhaps than ever before in our country's history, the courts of the nation, federal and state, are in a jam. They are being subjected to a greater strain than ever before and, I think, the strain is too great for them long to continue to bear it.

That sentence sounds sensational. It is meant to be. In the opinion of many sound thinkers, men and women of vision, there has never been a time when a wave or surge has attacked the courts or any other American institution with such ferocity.

One of the reasons the situation is to be regarded with so much concern is President Roosevelt's latest request of congress for a reorganization of the judiciary system. He is asking for more judges everywhere which, of itself, seems entirely proper, but the message astounded observers by proposing an increase in the membership of the Supreme court of the United States to fifteen. That is to say that if it were enacted into law, Mr. Roosevelt's own proposal would give him authority to select six additional justices of the highest tribunal. Inasmuch as the present membership of the court has refused a number of times to hold New Deal legislation valid under the Constitution, it takes no stretch of the imagination at all to figure out that Mr. Roosevelt's proposal would give him authority to select a sufficient number of new justices so that the New Deal would hold the balance of power in the highest court of the judiciary of the country.

There may be and probably is merit in the President's proposal that judges should retire at seventy years of age. It happens that the present membership of the court includes six men who are above that age and a statute compelling retirement at seventy would make six added vacancies in the court unless the present court should find that this law itself is unconstitutional in one regard. The judges are appointed for life and they cannot be removed without cause—which means they must be impeached by congress and tried.

The message respecting reorganization of the judiciary system was by far the most sensational to come from Mr. Roosevelt as President. He pointed out in it that he had proposed reorganization of the executive branch of the government so that it might function more efficiently. The next step, he said, was to reorganize the judiciary so that it could administer justice more speedily. But there are many minds throughout the country which find it difficult to believe that the necessity for speedy justice is the fundamental reason for the new proposal.

It is too early to tell, of course, how congress will act on the President's suggestion, but the more astute observers here are quite convinced that such legislation cannot go through without a bitter debate. The political implications are many. If a real struggle develops in the house or the senate, it is not outside the range of a good guess to predict that it could split the tremendous Democratic majority asunder in either house. If it did that once, undoubtedly enmities and factions would be created that would continue through the remainder of the President's new term and only the passage of time can disclose how far reaching such a thing might be.

But let us review for a moment some of the background of the conditions that have preceded the President's sensational proposal. There have been sniping and bushwhacking at the judiciary for a number of years and this was thrown into high speed by the President himself when the Supreme court threw out the NRA. On that occasion, Mr. Roosevelt made the well remembered remark that the decision had taken us back to "the horse and buggy days."

There followed an uproar by a vocal minority of radicals and persons who claimed to be liberal. They attacked the Supreme court for throwing out New Deal measures, ridiculed the justices as "the nine old men" and proceeded in general to spread poison to all and sundry about the country's judicial system. On top of that came Mr. Roosevelt's speech to congress last month in which he made a virtual demand upon the Supreme court for "a more enlightened interpretation of the Constitution." That was an unprecedented thing but it was not nearly so sensational as the present problem.

Congress Criticizes
A goodly number of representatives and senators who, swayed by the vocal minority mentioned earlier, have voiced bitter criticisms of the judiciary and have even proposed that its freedom be curbed. They are doing this because they see the Supreme court deciding every now and then that some ill-thought-out piece of legislation should be tossed out of the window. A good many of these congressional shouters have only a slight understanding of the babbles that they put out on the floors of the house and senate, but the fact remains they are a part of the congress and hence their words are received with some consideration among those who want to believe the same way.

On the other hand, there are men like Senator Borah of Idaho, who foresee real trouble for all of us if the powers of the courts are curbed. Senator Borah thinks the question of the freedom of the judiciary is a paramount issue and lately has made a powerful appeal that if the people want to make changes in their government, the people ought to do it and not the President and the congress.

The Idaho senator makes the point that only through a judiciary unfettered by politics, free to operate as it sees the law, can the people of the country retain their freedom. If judicial independence goes, liberty goes. So, it seems to me that congress, which just now is the spearhead of the movement to change the power of the courts, ought to recognize its own responsibility.

I said earlier that the courts could not continue long to bear the present burden of attack. That burden which they carry now results largely—and this is especially true of the Supreme court of the United States—from the fact that congress has ceased to be a deliberative body. It has tossed great chunks of undigested legislation at the courts and when the courts have held these laws unconstitutional, a bunch of nitwits each time has unleashed a great howl. It would seem then that the proper conclusion is that the nine old men are not older nor any less enlightened than the members of congress or the executive branches of the government but that especially congress is failing to do its job. It is attempting to read election returns into the judiciary. It seems to me it ought to be remembered by members of congress and officials of the executive branch of the government that each and every one of them has taken an oath as an official of this government to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution and in so doing they must defend the courts.

In any discussion of congress and its activities, I find time to do a little laughing. Through the last several weeks, a period when floods were raging and people were dying, when thousands upon thousands walked the streets without jobs, when other thousands walked the streets because a militant labor leader had called a strike and had permitted his strikers to violate laws of the land by seizure of property—while all of these things were happening, our congress was giving thought to a picayune proposition. It was discussing a bill providing for alterations of the Capitol building, itself.

The tragedy of this particular thing is that it has a very good chance of being enacted into law before the end of this session. It is proposed to spend four or five million dollars to extend and reconstruct the central portion of the Capitol along lines that would make the three east wings extend the same distance from the main building. It would enlarge the central portion and provide more office space when, as far as any observers can see, there is ample space for all of the offices required now or for the next half century.

I said the tragedy of the thing was that this proposal stands a fair chance of passing through congress. Sponsors of the plan declare it will improve the appearance of the central portion of the old building. It may do that but I have found more architects who disagree than agree with that thought.

As for the office space argument, it would appear that somebody in congress is quite determined simply to spend some more money. It is to be remembered that only two years ago, the house of representatives built a second office building at a cost of $9,000,000 for its members. About the same time, the senate added a wing to the senate office building so that each senator could have three rooms whereas heretofore the average senator had only two rooms in his suite. Committee chairmen always have had three or more rooms. In addition, there are several hundred offices in the Capitol building itself and a goodly number of senators and representatives have private offices in the Capitol as well as in the office buildings. So altogether, I think there is just ground for saying, as one hears said frequently, that the congresses of the last few years much resemble boys who have received too many toys in one delivery. They don't know what to do with themselves.

SAFETY---OR THIS?

DEATH, in the guise of heavily loaded motor trucks, rides the highways of Texas every day and every night. The toll of human death and injury of these vehicles is appalling.

In the five-year period, 1932 to 1936, inclusive, trucks in Texas have participated in 8,416 highway accidents in which 2,195 persons were killed and 11,962 injured. In 1936 alone, their record stood 2,208 accidents with 3,323 persons injured and 576 killed. These actual records of people killed, as shown by Texas newspapers, compared with the number of deaths resulting from all motor vehicle accidents, as given by the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Austin, show that the average Texas truck participates in twice as many fatal accidents as the average passenger car.

The right to grant, condition or deny the use of the highways for profit, belongs to you, the people of Texas, notwithstanding the attempts of the operators of BIG trucks to take it away and give it to the federal government instead. Your present laws, limiting the size, weight and speed of trucks, were enacted by reason of your insistence, and by your insistence they have remained on the statute books. Their amendment would serve the sole purpose of increasing the profits of operators of the BIG trucks, with the certain results of also increasing the mounting injuries, deaths and property losses now taking place on your highways.

Public welfare and public safety demand that existing highway regulations shall be retained and enforced.
